GIRL IS ONLY 17 YEARS OF AGE

Defendant Employs Two Lawyers and Will Fight Charge of Violating Mann Act—Both Arrested at Mobile.

PEMBERTON, N. J., Jan. 9.—News of the arrest at Mobile, Ala., yesterday of Joel M. Foster, charged with violation of the Mann law, created excitement here. Summary vengeance has been threatened against Foster by residents of this place. Foster is general manager of one of the largest poultry farms in the world, located at Browns Mills, N. J. On December 15 he disappeared from his home, and at the same time his stenographer, who was arrested in Mobile, with Foster, also disappeared. The girl, Delilah F. Bradley, 17 years old, is a daughter of Harry C. Bradley, a railroad baggage master. She was only a year out of school, was an active member of the Presbyterian church, and a teacher in its Sunday school. Foster, who is 40, is the son of T. J. Foster, head of a correspondence school at Scranton, Pa. The deserted wife and 15-year-old daughter of Foster are now at the home of the latter's father in Scranton. The father of Miss Bradley is heartbroken over his daughter's escapade, but says he will receive her with open arms if she returns home. He has not instituted proceedings against Foster, but this was explained by the statement that the federal authorities have preferred to handle the case under the "white slave" act.

Foster Employed Lawyers.
MOBILE, Ala., Jan. 9.—The preliminary hearing of Joel M. Foster, the wealthy poultry farmer of Browns Mills, N. J., who was arrested here Wednesday, charged with violation of the Mann white slave law, has been set for January 14. Foster has employed two prominent lawyers of this city to defend him and it is understood they will invoke in his case the recent decision of a federal judge in Texas, who held that the intent of the Mann act was merely to prevent commercialized vice. Foster this forenoon remained in his room at a fashionable hotel and refused to see interviewers. His former stenographer, Miss Delilah Bradley, whom he is charged with having brought here from New Jersey in violation of the Mann white slave act, today left the hotel where the two were arrested and sought seclusion in a private boarding house. During their stay at the hotel the couple were known as Mr. and Mrs. Foster and obtained admission into society circles of this city. The mother of the Bradley girl said today that her daughter could come home and live as she did before she went away. "We will forget her absence and help her to forget it," she added. "She is an innocent, trusting girl. Her life has been spent among persons on whom she relied for protection."

Women Plan National Wide Demonstration

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—Plans for a nationwide demonstration April 25 in support of the demand of woman suffrage organizations for an amendment to the federal constitution, are to be taken up tonight by prominent suffrage leaders at the home of Mrs. Donald Hooker in Baltimore. Miss Alice Paul of Washington, chairman of the congressional committee of the national organization; Mrs. Thomas M. Hepburn, president of the Connecticut State association, and other eastern suffrage leaders will participate in the conference.

Birney Still Boss.
As was to be expected, Joe Birmingham will continue as the manager of the Cleveland team. There was never any doubt as to that, for "Birney" has proved himself the most successful manager the Naps have had in many years. Notwithstanding the fact that President Johnson declared Birmingham unfit for the position last summer, the Cleveland club has not considered any one else for the position.

Iowa News Notes.
IDA GROVE—County Auditor Richard Varner has figured that the parking of the state capitol grounds at Des Moines will cost the county $2,638.30 this year, and Ida is the smallest county in the state.

IDA GROVE—George L. King began his annual harvest of the ice crop in the Maple river here yesterday. The ice is thirteen inches thick, and as there has been no snow it is the clearest and cleanest crop ever cut here.

IOWA CITY—The Funeral Directors' association of Iowa will hold its annual convention at Iowa City this year on June 5, 6 and 7. Directors of the association, meeting here yesterday, voted this step, and also made arrangements for the program for the convention. About 200 are expected to attend.

IDA GROVE—The grand jury returned an indictment against John Rush of Holstein. Running an automobile without lights he some weeks ago ran into the rear of a buggy on the outskirts of the town of Holstein and did not stop after the accident. A week or so after the accident his car caused him to give himself up, and this indictment followed.

IDA GROVE—Word reached here from Kansas City of the death there of Mrs. Thomas Storer. She and her husband were old-time settlers of this county, locating in the early days in Grant township. They went south in 1897. Mrs. Storer was 85 years old and leaves a husband and two daughters. She died of pneumonia.

IOWA CITY—Whether a guinea pig is or is not a domestic animal is the problem put up to Judge Howell of the district court here yesterday by Joe Anderson and the local board of supervisors. Frowning dogs killed seventy-five of the animals for Anderson last spring and the board of supervisors refused to pay for them out of the domestic animal

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—The Austrian embassy in Washington has asked Edgar Prechlik, Austrian vice consul at St. Paul, to proceed to the Calumet and Houghton mining territory and investigate complaints made by Austrian miners there as to treatment they have received. Charges have been made that penance exists in some parts of the mining country. No representations have been made tributed to her support and that she did not know his whereabouts. Dr. Margaret W. Koenig of Dundee appeared as a witness for her, testifying that she knew Mrs. Ellison had supported herself. Ellison, who testified in the divorce suit prosecuted by his second wife, formerly Mrs. Olive B. Garner, that he early in life had been known as Timothy W. Sherwood and later had taken the name of Marrow, is said to have had the most spectacular career of any man who has become prominent in Omaha business and social circles.

In Three Divorce Cases.
He has been defendant in three divorce suits, the first in Denver; superintendent of the Nebraska Humane society, organizer of the Douglas County Humane society, a leading Knight of Ak-Sar-Ben, Omaha real estate dealer, proprietor of a fresh egg farm on the West Dodge road, a business which was spoiled by the discovery that he was buying his eggs in the market; captain of the National guard in Colorado during the famous labor troubles there, and inmate of a Montana jail as the result of a conviction on a charge of selling liquor to the Indians.

Wore His Uniform.
At the height of his career in Omaha Captain Ellison was prominent and popular. He was of fine appearance and continued to wear a cavalry uniform in civil life. He came to Omaha during the famous labor troubles there, and inmate of a Montana jail as the result of a conviction on a charge of selling liquor to the Indians.

SUPERIOR BANK IS CLOSED

merce of Lincoln is correspondent for the bank and carries a good deposit. J. N. Anthon, state bank examiner, has been sent to look the matter up, but did not arrive there until this evening. Floyd Seybolt, national bank examiner, is representing the government. Captain C. E. Adams, well known in Grand Army of the Republic circles, is president of the bank and A. C. Felt, late president of the Nebraska State league, is cashier.

The part of the closing which interests Secretary Rogers is the fact that there was connected with the institution a savings bank, known as the First State Savings bank, operating under a state charter, which was under the same management as the national bank and which was operated in the same building and in the same room. The national bank is closed and just how to get the savings bank out so the public can do business is a problem which will be solved by the examiners, when they reach Superior.

By Omaha bankers the First National of Superior for some time had been considered a bit shaky, not on account of crookedness of the officers, but because the bank was making loans too freely. Captain C. E. Adams, an old resident of Superior and a politician, was president of the bank, but gave the management over largely to A. C. Felt, the cashier. Owing to the shortage of the corn crop throughout the southern part of the state last season, there was an abnormal demand for money in the vicinity of Superior last fall and this winter. This demand, it is said, looked good to Cashier Felt and he overloaned. Later on the loans became due and the borrowers were unable to pay, with the result that it was not long until the bank had its money tied up in securities on which it could not realize.

The capital stock of the First National of Superior was $50,000 and its surplus $25,000. This amount of money behind the bank, Omaha bankers say, was not sufficient to carry the loans that had been negotiated by the cashier, even if times had been better than they have been.

It has been reported that the Superior bank was carrying a large amount of the paper of the Superior Portland Cement company. This, Omaha bankers say, is not true. Some years ago, they say, it was carrying a quantity of the paper, but a year or more ago it went out of the bank on an order of the Federal bank examiner.

Boston Bankers Do Not Want Branch of N. Y. Reserve Bank

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 9.—Members of several Boston banking houses and representatives of various New England industrial organizations presented their views on the question of the establishment of a regional reserve bank in this city at the opening today of a two-day's hearing by the reserve bank organization committee.

Secretary McAdoo of the Treasury department and Secretary Houston of the Department of Agriculture, conducted the hearing. Secretary McAdoo said that while the committee recognized that there was a friendly contest between different sections for the establishment of regional banks, it was obliged to consider the problem an economic one in the broadest sense, and for this reason was investigating general industrial conditions in the various districts.

Statistics showing the increase in the last ten years in cotton, woolen and shoe manufacturing in New England were presented by Edwin G. Preston, former secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, who favored making the six New England states a regional bank district with Boston as the center.

The greater portion of the forenoon session was occupied by O. M. W. Sprague, professor of banking at Harvard university, who held that Boston should have a regional institution rather than a branch of one in New York, because a bank there would maintain a style low discount rate.

"The establishment in the northeastern section of the country of one large bank at New York," he said, "would be unworkable and contrary to the spirit of the act. There should be at least three banks between Maine and Florida and four of the total of twelve authorized to be established in the country. Boston should have a bank for Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and a part of Connecticut, with a branch station at Hartford."

The attitude of the Boston Clearing House association was presented by Thomas P. Beal and Alfred L. Ripley, both of whom favored a central bank discount rate.

To letters sent to 150 banks in Massachusetts, asking for an opinion on the regional bank proposition, Charles P. Blinn, Jr., president of the Massachusetts Bankers' association, said he had received 105 replies of which eighty-two favored a regional bank in Boston and twenty-eight preferred New York. Mr. Blinn divided the country into eighth districts, with centers at New York, Chicago, St. Louis, Boston, San Francisco, New Orleans, Atlanta and Denver, naming the cities in the order of the size of their banking business.
